Life will never be the same, I'll never love another person as much as I loved and cared about you. I'm lost and failing at life completely without you. In case you didn't know I'm crazy about you and I don't wanna live this life without you. I can't see myself without you. I honestly don't know what to do much less how. Please help guide me in need you more than ever

Why would you say so many awful things about one person? Come on you can be better than that! Amy may you rest in peace

It's terrible whoever wrote such awful things. Could it be this person was jealous of Ms Edington! I pray that hard heart of yours changes if not you may be the one burning in hell!!! So much hate in this world! God help us!!

happy belated birthday my love, no I didn't forget. I'll never forget a single thing about you. as you've been ingrained in me in my mind my heart and soul. I miss you more than I ever thought I could not more than 5 minutes go by without me thinking about you or something we done together you are my everything. you always looked out for me while taking care of me and Alek as I promised you I'll always be here for our son the only person who could prevent me is Alek himself. I want you back so bad I would literally do anything I could even if that means I could only get a short time with you id willingly serve part of you being back even if I had to spend the first portion of you being back and I'd give my own life for just a few days because without you I have nothing to look forward to nor do I have a reason to even want to continue living if I can't have you at my side daily I will always love and cherish the few years I was blessed to be in your life and I was graced with the best gift ever, as being able to be your husband
